Information Disclosure Statement

The information disclosure statement filed January 30, 2006 fails to comply with 37 CFR 1.98(a)(2), which requires a legible copy of each cited foreign patent document; each non-patent literature publication or that portion which caused it to be listed; and all other information or that portion which caused it to be listed. It has been placed in the application file, but the information referred to therein has not been considered.

Specification

Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: there are no headings, e.g. "Brief Description of the Drawings", in the specification. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Objections

Claim 1 is objected to because of the following informalities: stating the terms spring and catch in parenthesis is redundant. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. For claim 1, the claim is worded in such a way that it is confusing whether or not the automatic retraction device is a single feature in the claim or if it includes the pawl component, etc. described later in the claim. Next for claim 1, it is indefinite to "optionally" claim a feature. The feature should either be positively claimed or not claimed at all. Also for claim 1, "the..outer rails", "the first end position", "the catch" (first appears in "for" statement) and "the closed position" lack antecedent basis. Furthermore for claim 1, it is unclear whether or not the drawer is to be claimed in combination with the guide. In the preamble of the claim, only the guide is claimed; however, in the body of the claim, the pawl component is moved relate to the direction of the movement of the drawer. (See claim 2 also) For claim 2, "the web" lacks antecedent basis.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claim 1 would be allowable if rewritten or amended to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action. (Namely the prior art fails to teach a drawer guide assembly having an automatic retraction device including: a pawl housing on one of the rails with a pawl component which is movable between two end positions, the pawl component being biased by a spring arrangement into one first end position and lockable in the other second end position against retraction into the first end position and having a receptacle, a catch which is provided on other of the guide rails moves into the receptacle as the rails move relative to each other when approaching their closed positions, thereby disengaging the pretensioned movable pawl component from the associated end position so that the pawl component is moved under the effect of spring tension into the first end position and by way of the catch held in the receptacle entrains the rail associated therewith in the direction of retraction of the drawer, a damper which acts on the pawl component being provided on or in the pawl housing to damp and/or slow down the retraction movement of the pawl component, characterized in that an entraining rocker which is coupled to the pawl component and is movable during a final part of the retraction movement of the pawl component is additionally provided in the pawl housing and during the initial displacement path of the pawl component is decoupled therefrom and is retained so that it is secured against longitudinal displacement in the pawl housing, and that a separate spring which biases the entraining rocker in the direction of retraction engages on the entraining rocker.)

Claims 2-5 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
